

SURVIVOR VOICES INFO FOR INTERESTED WRITERS

About Survivor Voices

Survivor Voices is a project from CAASE where we source and spotlight writing by survivors. Our goal is to uplift a diverse array of perspectives, voices, and stories, and cover a variety of topics survivors want to write about. Thank you for your interest in contributing to Survivor Voices! Here are some details you may find helpful in the process.

Word Count

600-900 words

Attributions

We are happy to identify or anonymize you as the writer however you are most comfortable with. We can use your full name, just a first name, an initial, or pseudonym.

Timing of post

If there is a specific time frame that you would like your piece to be posted near, we can do our best to accommodate it if we are given adequate time. Examples of specific holidays or awareness days/month include Human Trafficking Awareness Month, Black History Month, Teen Dating Violence Awareness Month, International Transgender Day of Visibility, LGBTQ+ Pride Month, Disability Pride Month, Suicide Prevention Month, etc.

Social media promotion

CAASE will post Survivor Voices writing on our blog as well as in an accompanying social media post. Please let us know if you would like CAASE to tag you in the post on any social media platforms.

Questions?

Please reach out to Lizzy Springer, Marketing & Communications Manager at lspringer@caase.org with any questions or concerns.

CAASE cannot guarantee that all Survivor Voices submissions will be posted on our blog.
